Agenda Items of Note

Item B-2 - Millenia Elementary Trail Bridge

Orlando is home to more than 300 miles of urban bicycling trails, signed routes and lanes and has been a designated Bicycle Friendly Community since 2000. In the past year the City has added more wayfinding signage for cyclists at intersections and high-use corridors; has completed the Orlando Primary Bicycle Route Study which identified preferred corridors to close existing gaps in the overall trail network; and launched a bike rack request program to allow businesses to request a bike rack to be installed in front of their business. At today's City Council meeting, the City Council will vote to approve the construction of the Millenia Elementary Trail Bridge that will "bridge" the current gap of the Shingle Creek Pedestrian Trail. The project will provide a critical trail connection to the existing multi-use trail on the north and south sides of Shingle Creek with the construction of a pedestrian bridge and an extension of the existing multi-use trail on the southern side of the bridge to tie into the existing trail on the northern side of the bridge. Construction will start this summer and be complete this fall.

CRA - Project DTO

This morning there was a workshop on Project DTO's intensive visioning process, and the new Vision Plan and updated Community Redevelopment Area Plan which will serve as the roadmap for the future of Downtown Orlando. Recommendations from Project DTO span from

- improving bicycle and pedestrian amenities
- increasing parks and open space
- recruiting major corporate anchors and high wage jobs
- expanding neighborhood associations and housing options
- encouraging architecture that creates a signature skyline in Downtown Orlando

Mayor Dyer thanked the members of Project DTO's Task Force and Executive Advisory Committee for working tirelessly to help craft a road map for the future of the community and for their unwavering support for Downtown Orlando. Mayor Dyer also thanked the thousands of residents who provided input into the plan – from those who attended events to those who submitted feedback on social media.
